

Alzheimers and Mould

This book by Professor Dale Bredeesen unravels MD and exposes some of the facts and thoughts on mould and water damage related illness. It identifies why Alzheimer's and Dementia may be linked to typical mould and associated contaminants.

Building Forensics are mentioned in the book (p205) as providers of building and contamination investigation. Increasingly the identification of contamination and correct remediation of properties is being recognised as a major issue in diagnosis and recovery. ISBN 978-1-78504-122-8

Unfortunately, due to decades of exposure I now have frontal lobe atrophy and possible early onset Alzheimer's condition confirmed by Neuroquant 3D MRI which now shows various brain areas of atrophy and inflammation. My condition I hope, has not developed further as I halted exposure and followed treatment (Jeff Charlton)
